DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of group I, claims 1-5 in Paper No. 15 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that compounds in group III do not have any utility per se; and that examiner's proposed alternative method of making amine cannot be carried out. This is not found persuasive. In this case, applicants' argument that "compounds" do not necessarily have any particular utility per se is not well taken. Utility patents are granted to inventors of new and useful compounds, which is what applicants are believed to seek in this case. The evidence of record to show that compounds have utilities are found in applicants' disclosure. See spec. p. 74, comparative amines. Applicants' argument that there is no evidence of record to show there are alternative method to produce amine is also unpersuasive because the prior arts disclosed by applicants are also related to production of amines. See US 3223700.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 2 recites that q and r in formula (I) are 0 or 1. That limitation renders that claim vague and indefinite because when either or both q and r are 0, the nitrogen atom which is adjacent to the R3 and R4 radicals cannot have balanced electrons.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –
(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Roncucci et al. (US 4639468).

Roncucci discloses a glycinamide derivative having the general formula and the constituents, which are the species of the genus of the instant invention. See abstract.

For example, the limitation of the instant claims encompasses the prior art amide when R is a linear or branched alkyl group C5-18; R1 hydrogen; R2 a linear or branched alkyl C1-3; R3 and R4 hydrogen, linear or branched alkyl groups C1-8. The reference teaches that the amide added in pharmaceutical compositions, thus meeting the composition limitation. See col. 4, lines 18-53. The recitation of "hair cosmetic" is viewed a mere preamble which recites intended use or purposes of the composition. Thus no patentable weight is given to the term.

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kitzing et al. (CAPLUS 1986:19816).

Art Unit: 1617

Kitzing teaches that cosmetic composition comprising 2-(dimethylamino)-N-dodecyl-acetamide as shown below is well known in the art. See abstract.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

1. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mitsumatsu (WO 98/40046) in view of Schmadel (CAPLUS 1967:455359).

Mitsumatsu teaches hair conditioning composition comprising from about 0.4 to 5 of an amido amine; from about 0.05-20 % by weight of an inorganic or organic acid; and Mitsumatsu teaches hair conditioning composition comprising from about 0.4 5 of an amido amine; from about 0.05-20 % by weight of an inorganic or organic acid; and from about 1-15 % by weight of fatty alcohol having 12-22 carbon atoms. See abstract; page 3, line 22 – page 5, line 32.

The reference fails to teach the amine of the instant claims.

Schmadel teaches that a surfactant having formula is well known in cosmetic art. See abstract. The reference teaches that the surfactants improve foam stability, are mild, and particularly suitable for cosmetic preparation.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the composition of Mitsumatsu by substituting the Schmadel amine with the amido amine as motivated by Schmadel because of an expectation of successfully producing a mild hair rinse composition with foam stability.
